

Draft Professional Standards Regarding Conscientious Objection

Preamble

This document gives direction to physicians regarding conflicts of conscience. This document applies to all situations in which physicians are caring for patients, including, but not limited to, Medical Assistance in Dying (MAID), reproductive care and gender affirming care.

Professional Standards

1. A physician must communicate promptly and respectfully about any treatments or procedures relevant to the patient's condition that the physician is unable or unwilling to provide for reasons of conscience.
2. A physician must not withhold information from the patient regarding a procedure or treatment relevant to the patient's condition, even if providing such information conflicts with the physician's conscience.
3. A physician must not promote their own moral or religious beliefs to patients.
4. When a physician is unable or unwilling to provide a legally available surgical or medical treatment for reasons of conscience, the physician must make an effective referral.
5. With the consent of the patient, a physician must provide all relevant health records to the physician receiving the effective referral.
6. After making an effective referral, the physician must continue to provide care to the patient until this care is no longer required or wanted, or until another suitable physician has assumed responsibility for the patient, or until after the patient has been given reasonable notice that you intend to terminate the relationship.
7. In medically emergent situations, physicians must provide whatever medical care is necessary for the patient, notwithstanding any issues of conscience.

Definitions

Effective Referral means a referral made in good faith to a non-objecting, available, and accessible physician, other health-care professional, or agency.
